Stretch Shirt Comparisons

We have several types of shirting and knit fabrics that have similar contents, weaves, and features. With the launch of the Evian Print from Carlo Bassetti, it's important to know how to differentiate between these fabrics and what they offer to your client.

Performante

- 74% Nylon 26% Elastane
- Knit weave
- Has the most stretch out of these three fabric qualities.
- Less structured
- Drapes (hangs) loosely, does not feel or wear like a regular woven shirt.

Evian Print

- 76% Nylon 24% Elastane
- Knit weave
- Very similar to Performante in stretch, feel, and weight.
- A bit more structured than Performante, meaning it won't feel as loose and drapey.
- The main difference will be in specific finishing techniques that each mill uses on these qualities.

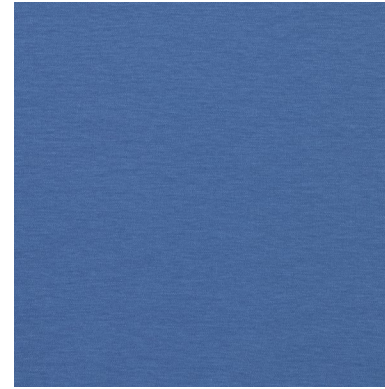

Ratti Stretch Print

- 95% Nylon 5% Elastane
- Woven
- Most structured of these three qualities – mainly from the woven construction which has more structure than a knit construction.
- Wears more like a regular shirt than a knit weave.
